MEMORIES

The year began as usual. Nothing spectacular. Classes were routine, or close anyway, depending on the teacher.

The fall season came and went. Approaching winter, just as the U.S. Presidential election was being made ready, Howe's mock election steadily progressed. In November the Nationalists defeated the Federalists with Mark Collins elected as Governor. A few days later, Jimmy Carter was elected President of the United States.

Coaches worked their teams into shape. The tennis team won the city championship. Defending city champs in wrestling came back this year to finish second. An exciting basketball season united school spirit in a close run with Tech for a city championship. Other teams performed well.

After Christmas vacation, bad weather made a few adults rather upset and a lot of kids super happy. Because of snow, and later a gas shortage, schools were closed many days. Some smaller school corporations cut schedules to include only three days in a week.

Despite everything school continued. During vacations scheduled and nonscheduled, HILLTOPPER staffers worked frantically to finish pages for deadlines.

In the spring "Once Upon a Mattress" was performed as the annual musical. Well over a hundred people participated including many who rarely receive much of the glory.

Seniors participated in traditional activities while underclassmen took another step, an erratic step toward their last year.

1. Friends have a chance to get back together the first day of school.
2. Trains are never on schedule.

3. Tracy Johnson waits for a ride because of the freezing weather.
4. No coats and snow-covered ground don't stop students from beating the crowd and the distance between exits 5 and 6.
5. Jeff Bell uses the ever-popular telephone to solve the communication gap.
6. Nameless faces on an unknown journey.

In our four years at Howe we learned how to tell exactly when the principal would strum his mandolin every forty minutes. It seemed as if all we wished was to hear that strange tone eight or nine times a day, then go home.

Yet, we didn't realize how deep an engraving these high school days would make in our hard-surfaced memories.

Most of us strived to be popular and aimed to be famed. Trying to become something more than just an object taking up space. Struggling to become more than an equal. While few of us succeeded, the great majority of us had the time of our lives trying.

Life in itself is constant learning and high school is an unusual conglomeration of learning, fun, new experiences, and especially making friends. For most, the friends you have upon leaving high school will be your companions for life.

Yes, some of us enjoyed learning postulates, theorems, functions, and tables; sentence structure, paragraphing, and poetic verse; laws, systems, and historical dates while most of us were concentrating on a different kind of date like talking in poetic verse at a different kind of table.

Four years of our lives were spent here at Howe preparing for the future. Looking back, we realize that the time between the strums of the mandolin was the most valuable thing in the world.

SPIRIT IS NOT DEAD

School spirit IS NOT DEAD! The idea that Howe doesn't care is not now, if it ever was, true. People don't realize just how lively it really is, and it's time they sit up and take some notice.

I went to the basketball game Saturday night. Our bleachers were full and the crowd was wild. There were times I thought that the roof was going to fall in because of the noise. As the numbers on the scoreboard got higher the fans got louder. It was really great! The main contest was not on the floor, but rather in the bleachers between the fans from Howe and the fans from Martinsville. The result was victory for Howe.

Earlier in the week I had been to our first wrestling meet. There, too, was the old school spirit. The grapplers were up defending their city championship. The bleachers were alive with anxious Howeites. The points were mounting up. At the slap of the mat the crowd lurched to their feet. School spirit was soaring as Howe came out victorious again.

When it comes to school spirit and defending the honor of Howe, I find that we, the Hornets, always come through.

German Club Strong, Growing

After only two short years, the Howe German Club is strong and growing. They had an officer, Andy Wiles, in the seat of InFSG (Indiana Federation of Students of German) vice-president. Andy's efforts led to a 50% increase in state membership. With the persuasive leadership of their sponsor, Herr Kindle, the club attended two Oktoberfests. They held their annual Christmas program to show the community what Christmas is like in Deutschland. They formed their own dance group and performed at the state fairgrounds and for a local grade school where several members taught German to fourth and fifth graders. The club was in charge of the Faschingstanz (costume ball) at the Liederkranz Hall. Over the summer the club attended the national convention at Eastern Michigan.

JROTC Has Busy Schedule

Approximately 140 students participated in the JROTC (Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps) headed by 1/Sgt. Harold M. Ecktman, who was assisted by M/Sgt. Jerome Baker.

Many outstanding cadets were involved in activities outside the regular JROTC class. One hundred cadets took part in the Veterans Day parade, marching over a mile in very cold weather. Both male and female drill teams competed at the Muncie Southside meet in the fall. They also marched in the Annual Irvington Community Halloween parade led by the Howe JROTC Color Guard. Members of the Color Guard presented the flag at most Howe activities, doing an especially good job during the football season. The rifle team competed against many schools throughout the city.

Cadet Major Joseph O'Gara said that leading the battalion in the Veterans Day parade was the most fulfilling part of being commander.

Life in a Goldfish Bowl (and Newsroom)

We regret to say that Frieda died on Sunday, January 23, 1977, because of inclement weather.

"Who was Frieda?" That is what most students would have asked when hearing that name. Any TOWER staffer or human form of the like would tell you she was a goldfish. Frieda was TOWER'S mascot because she represented their varying attitudes and moods.

She could tell when the publications faced hard and fast deadlines because she couldn't take her afternoon nap—the lights weren't out yet. So she waited all the while taking in the aroma of candy, popcorn, coke, and shriveled pizza (for man can not live on bread alone). But hard times don't last long and soon the place returned to normal.

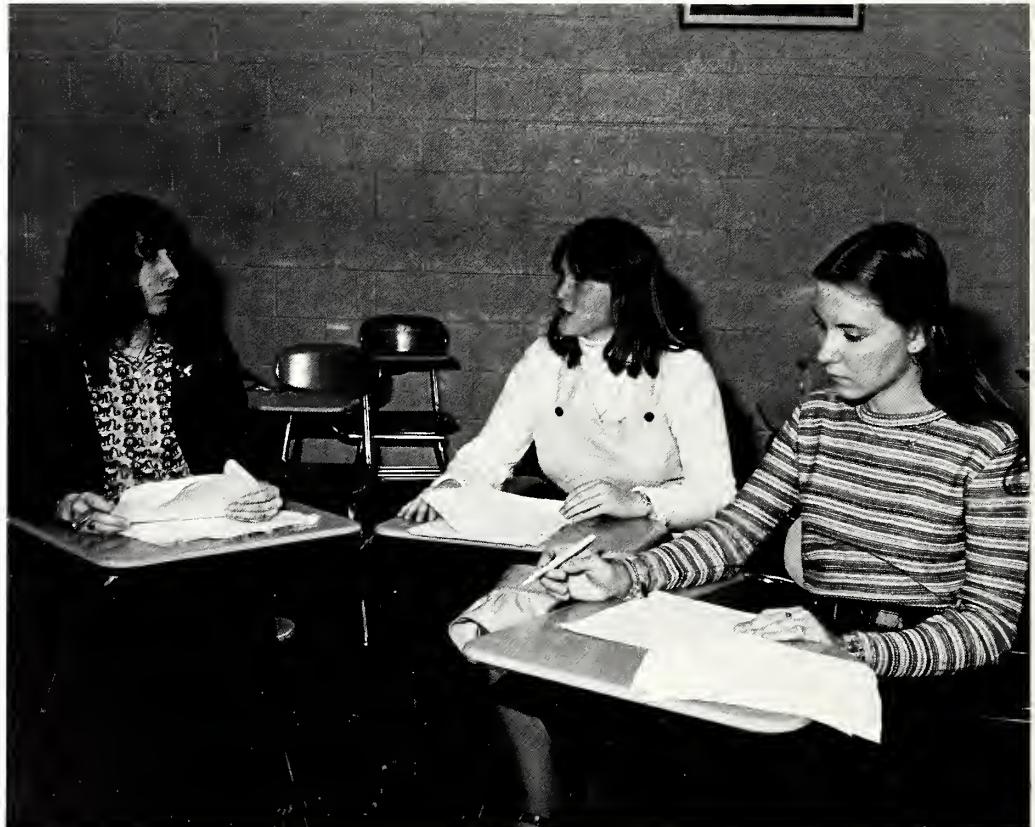

Of course, when the group was in a grumpy mood, Frieda had friends to turn to like Walter, Annabelle Lee, and Resurrection (named because of its habit of dying and then coming back to life). If you did not catch their nature, they are plants. Frieda also shared her home with Fred, a fish of the same species. She seldom got lonely.

If she couldn't find company in her silent friends, she looked to the sounds of Brad Gildea's jokes to perk up her spirits. David Heimer's occasional remarks such as "Who wrote this mess?" told her that everything was back to normal in the newsroom. Frieda died knowing she had given her life for a good cause.

Council Stresses Communication

The new spirit in Student Council was very different from past years. We had many energetic youngsters and a small group of inexperienced leaders. Only one member had been the chairperson of a committee. In many ways our inexperience was bad; but for the experimenting and renovating we did this year, it was a help instead of a hindrance.

Our student council began overcoming its inexperience right away by sending 17 members to the State Student Council convention at Delta High School in October. We were selected to host the 1977 state convention.

Our council wanted to be the sounding board of the student body. We wanted the responsibility of representing their feelings. With this objective we established our goals. The first was to build strong leaders who would be creative in planning and carrying out ideas. We also attempted to bring together the many minority groups of the school into one functional student body working well with the faculty and administration. In past years participation has been slowly declining, but with our new activities and with the changing of many traditional procedures we tried to arouse the enthusiasm of every student.

Communication was our most important goal. This year we formed a Communication Committee and a Newsletter Committee. We also established a Spirit Board consisting of a representative from each school organization. The Communication Committee informed the student body by word of mouth, and the Newsletter communicated in writing. The Spirit Board also gave a chance for more students to be involved in planning and organizing school functions.

This year's council finished some projects and continued others initiated in the past two years. We completed taking ID pictures, finished the Bicentennial mural, and put up the U.S. flag in the new gym. We also continued senior honor passes, teacher and cafeteria recognition days, and the annual Christmas party at the Marion County Home for the Aged. This year's council funded the making of the school mascot that hangs in the new gym. Our big project was building a marquee to be placed near the flagpole.

This was a good year for our council, aided by the foundations laid by councils before us. We hope that future councils will be able to learn from our experiences.

I made a statement early in the year that we could make this the most outstanding year in Howe's history. Though I am not sure we accomplished that goal, I am sure that this was the most outstanding year of my life thanks to fellow council members, Mrs. Aman, Mr. Tout, faculty, and students. My experience this year has shown me how to work with people and this I will carry with me always.

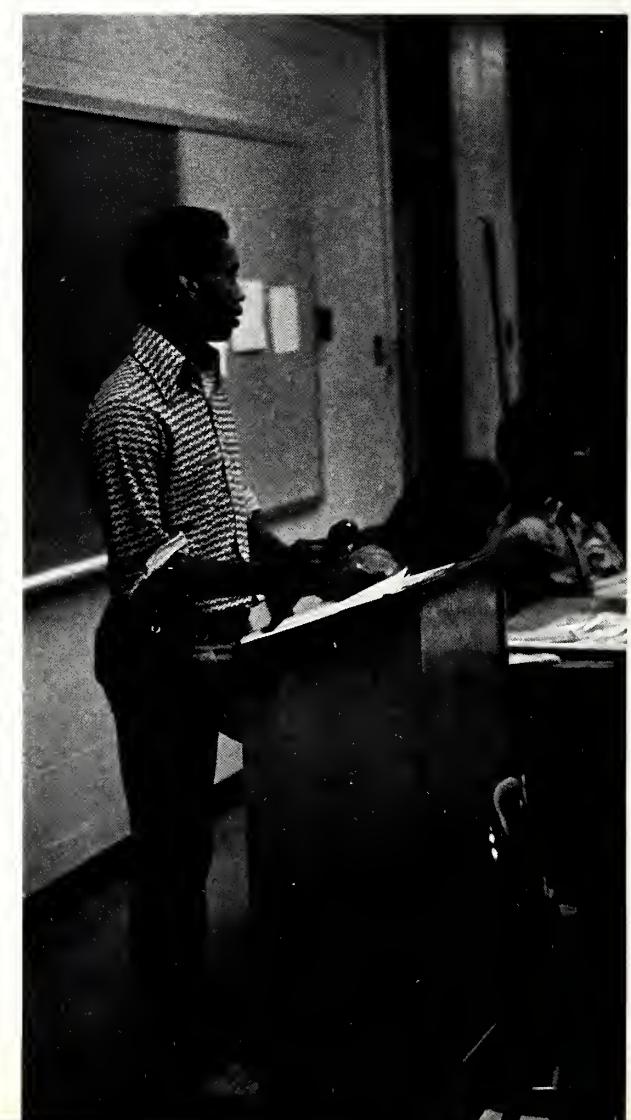

It is hard work representing the school, but it is worthwhile when the student body supports its council. This has been a good year but don't stop now. Make next year even better.

“A Sense of Accomplishment”

Question: When is a student not a student?

Answer: When he is involved in a non-academic activity which requires no grade standards or academic ability. Kids who are active in these organizations enjoy the work, responsibility and fun that they find after school with dedicated teacher sponsors. Students who take advantage of non-academic groups gain a sense of accomplishment, but more importantly they have fun being with fellow students.

New Concept in Orchestra

During the first semester of school the Howe orchestra consisted of only string players. This arrangement gave the members a chance to show off what they could do without the aid of the wind and brass players. It proved to be a learning experience for both the students and the teacher, Mr. Christoff. This arrangement was used for the Pops Concert in November but wind and brass were added for the Community Sing in December.

Again this year Howe had the biggest representation in the All-City Orchestra—a total of 23 members. David Crooks was trumpet soloist for the orchestra. Gary Childs, David Crooks, and Sam Hurt were members of the All-State Orchestra.

The String Ensemble performed at the Education Center and for the North Central Association evaluators. They competed in the State solo and ensemble contest.

The second semester full orchestra was scheduled. The orchestra began working on the musical, "Once Upon a Mattress," at the end of January. The musical was presented at the end of March.

Performances Highlight Band Year

The marching band does just what their name says and much more. They marched in the Veterans Day parade playing marching tunes and bicentennial music that the Hornet Honeys danced to. A music consultant commented on how good the band's performance was this year. They also march in the Beech Grove Loyalty parade each year and have placed high in previous years.

The marching band received some new percussion equipment and another of their main goals was to get new uniforms within the next two years. The size of the stage band and the marching band was improved upon, also. The stage band received their first guitar players and some additional brass players.

Many of the marching band members are also in the stage band, which performed in the Spring Concert, a concert held at Turtle Creek on Valentine's Day, and the annual Pops Concert at the beginning of the year.

Chorus Classes First Step

Chorus classes are a vital part of the music program. All students in their first semester of vocal music are enrolled in their respective chorus class. Next the students progress to Concert Club and then Concert Choir. Students are chosen from the Concert Clubs and Choir to be in groups like Swing Choir and Madrigals. Student teachers help primarily with chorus classes, making them a learning experience for both teachers and students.

1. Chorus class member Leslie Cox, chosen as page for the Madrigal feasts, assists the magicians in their act.

2. Senior Kevin Friedly auditions for this year's musical, "Once Upon a Mattress."

3. The Choralaires, directed by Mr. Bramblett, perform at the annual Community Sing.

Once Upon a Musical

This year the music department presented "Once Upon a Mattress," a musical based on the fairy tale "The Princess and the Pea" with a few extra implications.

The Queen takes over the kingdom because of a curse making the King mute. She declares no one in the kingdom shall marry until her son Dauntless does. Sir Harry and Lady Larken are particularly anxious for Dauntless to marry because of Larken's delicate condition. The story has a happy ending, however, for Winnifred comes along and proves to be a worthy mate for the Prince.

Many people contributed to the success of the musical. Not only talented actors and actresses deserved credit for their fine performances but many others also. Extra hours were put in by the orchestra; the sound, stage, and makeup crews; and the home economics department, which made the costumes.

Dedicated students giving time and energy were responsible for making this musical one of the best in the history of Howe.

1. Larken (Susan Long) informs the Jester (Steve Barnard), the Minstrel (Kevin Friedly), and the King (David Brooks) of her unexpected development.

2. King Sextimus, cursed to be speechless "till the mouse devours the hawk," watches helplessly as the Queen (Ginny Shockney) takes over the kingdom.

3. Winnifred (Kristi McGuire) scales the castle wall to meet Dauntless (David Harkness).

4. Lovers Sir Harry (Doug Hvidston) and Larken sing "Yesterday" while remembering the carefree days of the past.

5. The King pantomimes as the Minstrel and Jester sing "The Minstrel, Jester and I."

6. The Queen and the Wizard (Gary Childs) devise a test that Winnifred will surely fail.

ACADEMICS

The students of Thomas Carr Howe High School are proud of their school and its academic program, and they have a right to be. Howe has one of the best schools and educational programs in the city. Its facilities are modern and convenient. Howe students should be proud.

Students and teachers work well together here. Howe teachers are of the highest quality. Students have found that teachers are more than willing to spend a little extra time and attention for those who want it. This certainly is appreciated by students. This harmony reflects the excellence of school itself.

Students at Howe enjoy working together with other students. Lab partners and neighbors in the classroom become quick friends in the old routine of class. Sharing common interests in classes brings people closer together. Lasting friendships are made. Familiar faces often brighten up one's day.

Howe students and faculty are proud also of the new additions to the building, the library and the new gymnasium. But the impressive work doesn't stop with the walls and the floors. What is inside is even more impressive. Inside the gym, Howe athletics are rising to higher peaks. New and better competition is now coming into sight. Both students and the staff are impressed with the new library. The facilities and materials add much to the academic status of Howe.

Students have a right to be proud of their school. Nearly any Howe student would agree that we have a pretty fantastic academic school.

What's New?

There were many new approaches to old ideas at Howe this year. The registration program was completely changed. Orientation classes were revived and the counseling was almost all new. There was very little left the same.

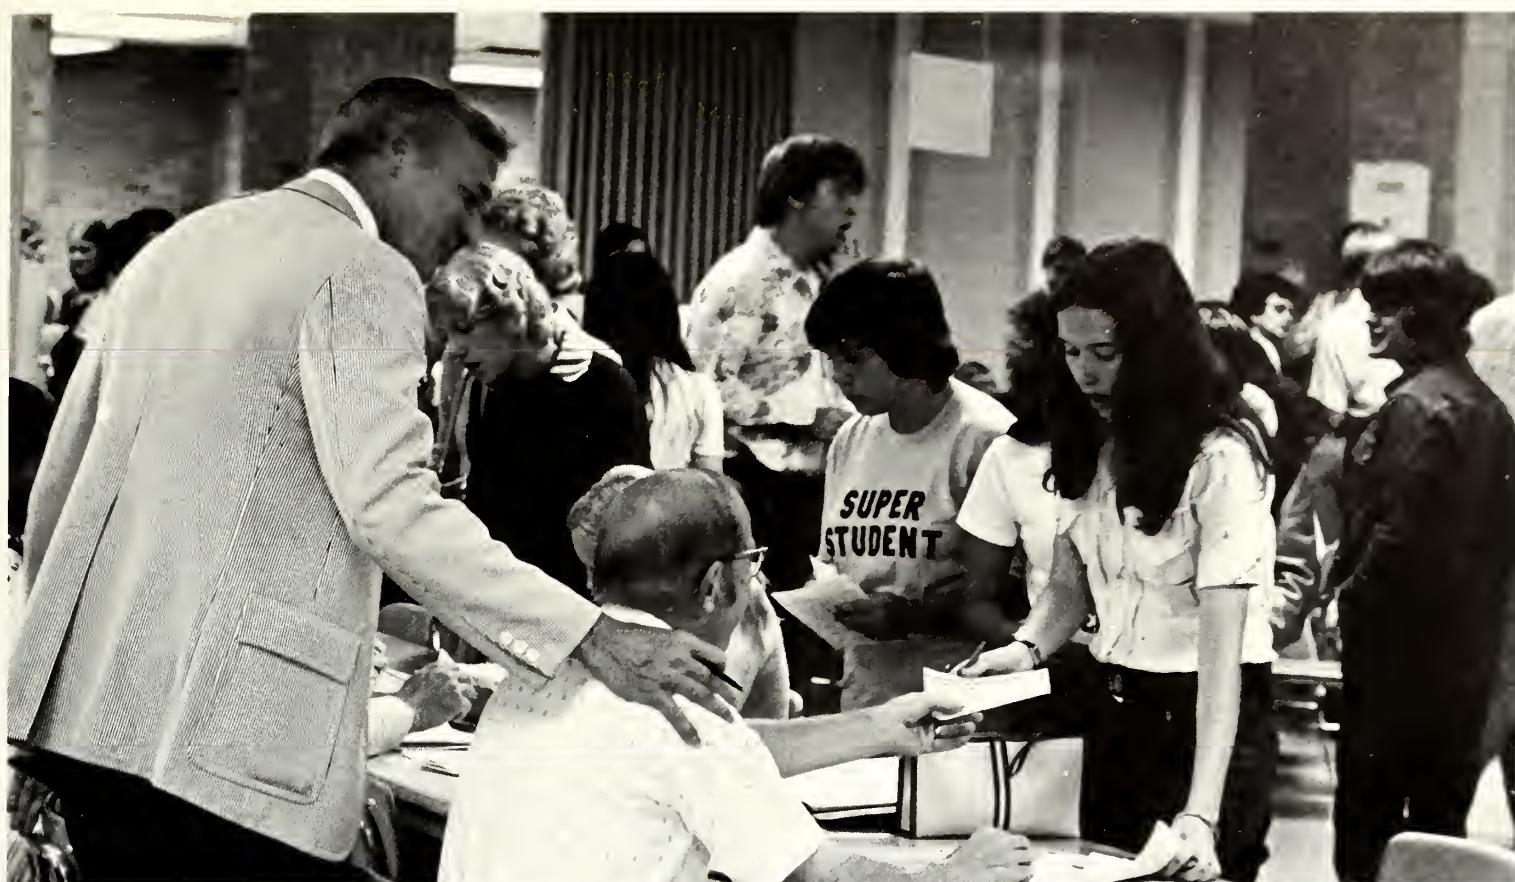

Instead of the usual home-room registration, it was a free-for-all, each-man-to-himself routine. The mob congregated just outside the cafeteria on the patio. Every once in a great while the doors would open and spurts of people would squeeze in. Not an encouraging sight to the less ambitious. It was quite a struggle to get past the mob and into those doors, but as you can see some managed. It wasn't until a person gained entrance to the cafeteria that he was exposed to the ultimate confusion. About that time everyone asked, "Why?" Not very many answers were given because most of the teachers were asking the same question. It sure seemed like chaos on registration day.

Looking back a person has to admit it was a success. The scheduling errors were remedied immediately upon discovery, and the overall efficiency was definitely greater than in previous years. Even after the unusual registration procedure, school once again returned to the norm and the North Central evaluation went almost unnoticed.

1. Students relax on the lawn during registration.
2. To keep confusion down to a minimum only a few people at a time were let into the cafeteria.
3. Faculty members were put to use regardless of their usual roles.

It is the sweat on your brow, the cramp in your legs, the drained feeling in your arms, the mental anguish that says it's too much; it is that terrible, hopeless feeling telling you that mind and body have been pushed too far. It is this that makes the hours of practice, of grueling exercise, all worthwhile.

It is not the thrill of winning, or the exhilaration of recognition that comes from a good performance; it is something much more. You are combating a force inside yourself that has a message so simple and strong that it's incredible—"quit!"

There is always a battle to score the most points or turn in the best time; yet the real opponent, the one you must conquer, is yourself. If that little voice that says "quit" can be vanquished, the pain that encompasses your entire body is crushed also. This is called "second wind" by most athletes, but by whatever name you label it, it is the most satisfying experience of all.

You know you have pushed your body beyond its limits. The stiffness and soreness is no longer painful, but is a trophy of solid gold to be prized above all others.

This trophy is one that you won't be able to show to others. Yet that seems to make it more valuable; it is something you've done that no one else can touch, it is yours and yours alone.

You have conquered the greatest foe of all: Yourself.

Work, Attitude Bring Track Success

On the first Monday in March, practice began for the 1976 boys track team. All who practiced with the team participated in the meets. Coaches Harpold, Mitchell and Jessup shaped them up for their coming season by working with them every evening after school for at least two hours.

The varsity (10-4) and junior varsity (12-2) both had successful seasons.

The team placed fifth in the sectional. Abe Moore won the 100 and 220. Mike Wilson took third place in the low hurdles. Doug Privette was third in the 440. Lenny Primm placed second in the city meet with a school-record high jump of 6'4". Abe Moore ran the 100 in ten seconds flat at the Terre Haute North Invitational. The outstanding team performance was winning the Greenfield Underclass Meet.

Team members chose Doug Privette as captain and Best Mental Attitude Award winner. Abe Moore was Most Valuable Player. Aronzo Holland received the Carl Spiess Award for most outstanding freshman.

Team members felt hard work and positive attitude were responsible for their success.

Relays Lead Enthusiastic Team

With new coach James Perkins and assistant coach Suzanne Kamen, Howe's young and willing girls track team got off to an early start. A preconditioning course was designed with them in mind, although anyone who was interested could attend the workouts. The course consisted of exercising and lifting weights.

There were few returning letter winners. The few who returned did an exceptionally good job. All the girls worked hard and were anxious for their first meet, which was cancelled because of bad weather. The last meet was also on a terrible day, but the girls were willing to run and won. The season record was 2-8.

The best performances came from the relay teams. The crowds and the rest of the team were really excited during the relays. Charlotte Smith was a versatile and dependable relay runner.

Other strong performers were Pam Castaneda in the 880, Sue Layman and Bonnie Bingle in the mile, Carol McCrae in the hurdles and long jump, Danita Gant and Angelia Ford in the 220, and Pilar Ammons in the 100 and 440. Sandra Castile was the only freshman who lettered. She did well in the 220 and hurdles.

Young Golfers Smother Opponents

A young Howe golf team swung to a successful season this year. The Hornets stung last year's city champ Arlington (197-203) in their best match of the season and smothered Washington by 88 strokes. MVP Joe Smith led the team to an 11-4 season record and a fourth place finish in the sectional and a fifth place finish in the city.

Senior Doug Peters and Juniors Rex Cotter and Joe Kaiser provided strong team support. New coach Joe Vollmer cited conquering Chatard and Marshall as other season highlights.

Girls Tennis Fights Inexperience

In spite of a dim preseason outlook, an inexperienced girls tennis team competed against some of the toughest teams in the city.

The girls continued to work hard and practiced faithfully even though they were edged out of a win four times by only one match. They completed their season with a 7-8 record.

Strong Baseball Teams Hit High Averages

The 1976 baseball teams had an extremely successful year. With Brad Gildea heading the pitching staff, the freshmen split their season with six wins and six losses. Coach Jacob observed that the boys got along and played well together.

The reserves were city champs with a 17-5 record. According to Coach Preston this was a new school record for the number of wins. Griff Reed was the first Howe reserve player in ten years to hit over .400.

The varsity, with nine returning lettermen, were a strong hitting team. Mark Gillespie led in hitting with a .450 average. Ray (Boo) Littleton was first in home runs with seven. Kevin Johnson had 15 stolen bases. Coach Spears commented that the highlight of the season was beating John Marshall, rated second in the state.

Boys Tennis Recaptures City Title

The boys' tennis team, although having only three courts to practice with at Ellenberger, ended with an 11-3 season and a city championship. The team has won numerous city championships and since its beginning has had only winning seasons, making tennis the most successful sport at Howe. Howe is one of the few schools able to field a full junior varsity and freshman team.

Depth was the team's biggest asset. Each varsity member was instrumental in Howe's defeating all city teams. The most exciting meet was the close Shortridge meet where Howe edged out last year's city champs. Members placing first in the city tournament were Allan Guthrie in singles and Rick Gunderman and Matt Langenbacher in doubles. Gary Loveman received MVP; Rick Gunderman, Best Mental Attitude; and Jerry Suiter, Most Improved Player awards.

High spirits, hard work, and skill made this a successful season.

Cross Country Teams Challenge City Rivals

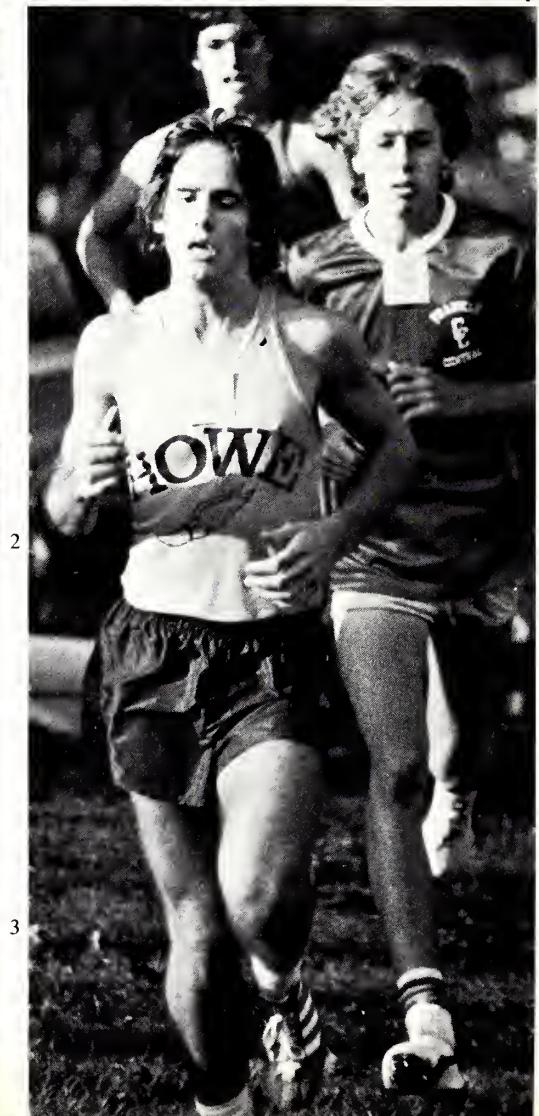

How would you feel after running before and after school each day there isn't a meet? Any member of the cross country team can tell you—tired. Their work at Christian park paid off, however, as all three teams were contenders for the city title.

The varsity, led by returning lettermen Jim Clark, Marty Dugan, Ken St. John, and first year runner Malcolm Curry, ran their way to a 10-4 season. They also placed third in a very close city meet.

The reserves placed fourth in the city meet and had an 11-3 record although hindered by injuries.

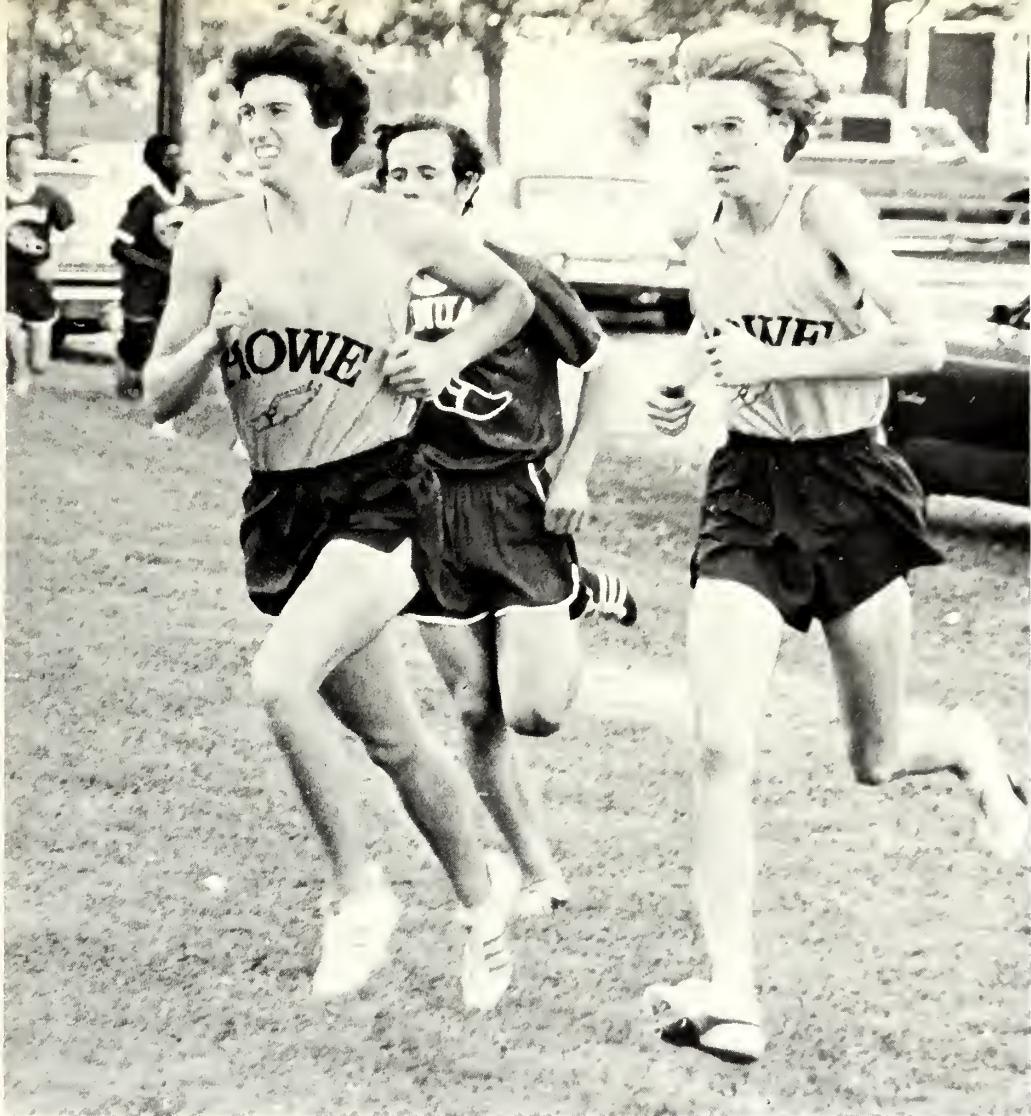

The freshmen, marked by consistency and potential, finished with a 10-5 record and ranked third in the city meet.

Injuries, Inexperience Plague Varsity

Injuries and inexperience plagued this year's varsity football team. Expecting a good season, the team fell short of their goal. With James Fair and Eligie McDaniel out much of the season, the Hornets fell to a record of 4-6. However, they beat archrival Scecina for the first time in recent years and won their homecoming game against Arlington.

Howe's reserve team fought its way against several tough opponents to achieve a season record of 4-3-3. Team highlights included starting out the season by beating both Washington and Tech.

The freshman record of 3-3-3 showed the high quality of city competition. Out of the 65 players who started the season, only 28 remained until the end. Despite the loss of players the team closed its season with a tie against Perry Meridian and a shut-out of Ritter. They lived up to their motto, "You have to pay the price to be successful."

Volleyball Wins Close Matches

Hustle, desire, and teamwork! That's what it took to overcome weaknesses such as short players and a young team. Strong serving and the ability to come from behind to win helped the girls' volleyball team to a varsity record of 10-9 and a reserve record of 5-7.

One of the highlights of the season was in the city tournament when 28 setups were used in defeating Arlington.

Awards went to Cheryl Keough, most valuable player; Tina Eggers, best mental attitude; and Pam Castaneda, most improved player.

Lack of Pool Handicaps Swimmers

Individual effort seemed to be the strong point of the boys swimming team. Even with six returning swimmers, the team just wasn't strong enough to top the opposition. A major part of the problem was the lack of a swimming pool for practice. Even with a losing season the boys' spirit was very high. While boarding the bus at the end of a tough meet, the boys yelled repeatedly "Howe's number one!" as loud as they could.

Swimmers Get Late Start

The fall of 1976 was the fourth season for girls swimming at Howe. Seven girls returned from last year, including Kathie Wood, this year's most valuable swimmer and the team's only senior. Old team members welcomed six new swimmers, two sophomores and four freshmen.

The season for the girls got off to a bad start when repairs on Forest Manor's pool delayed practice for about three weeks. As a result, the girls had to forfeit their first three meets. In all they had ten meets, defeating Deaf School and Marshall.

Two major changes were made from last year's meets. There were no more 50-yard races, except in freestyle, and distance swimmers like Robi Williams swam 500 yards instead of 400.

By the end of the season, every girl on the team had improved on her time or stroke. The team chose Lois Lauck as the member with the best mental attitude and Marie Brown as most improved swimmer.

1. Kathie Wood always gives the individual medley her best effort.

2. Lois Lauck concentrates on her dive for the 100-yard freestyle.

3. Eileen Dugan, Robin Rippel and Coach Hancock have a good time after defeating Marshall.

Gymnasts Practice Precision

Difficult-to-learn moves, strength, and pointed toes are what gymnastics is all about; and the two-year-old boys gymnastics team has begun to pull these points together to make a few meets victorious adventures.

The team was led by seniors Jay Philabaum, Chris Campbell, Mark Allison, Lenny Primm, and Bob Vanat, with the appraising eyes of coaches Rick Hewitt and Larry Fitzgerald always looking on. It was the coaches' job to check routines and new moves, and occasionally catch someone resting for a bit too long, to keep everyone progressing further and working on form and skill.

Almost everyone did progress, and even with the injuries many sustained the team stayed together. Heading the injury list was senior all-around performer Bob Vanat, who broke his ankle towards the end of the season. Bob was the leading scorer in many events.

Coach Hewitt was especially impressed with the first-year men and everyone's willingness to try. He also remarked that the gymnasts were doing much better than their record indicated.

Girls Gymnasts Going Strong

The girls gymnastics team is still one of the toughest teams at Howe. They worked hard on making their routines the best possible, practicing every day after school, on Saturdays, and even during vacations. Some of the team's strength came from returning seniors Cheryl Keough and Tracy Johnson. Cheryl was always strong on the uneven bars and this year performed on the beam. Tracy, whose main events were floor and uneven bars, was on the team from her freshman year.

The team was inexperienced, with many new members, but they definitely had much determination. An example of this was in vaulting, where new team member Theresa Littleton took some firsts in the early meets.

Howe gymnasts seldom compete against an "easy" team. North Central and Portage are usually tough competition and this year was no exception. The team started the season with a victory against Shelbyville, then lost to North Central in their second meet. Bad weather was a disadvantage to the girls. Practice was hard to schedule and meets had to be postponed or cancelled. The girls ended the season by hosting their invitational on February 26 and the sectional on March 16.

Stinging Season for Opponents

The '76-'77 basketball season was a stinging one for Howe's opponents. Though the freshmen had a winless season, they played tough, aggressive ball that kept them in many close games.

The junior varsity, as defending city champions, started out strong. The junior varsity had a perfect record when they faced the Tech Titans. After an upset by Tech, the JV's went on to a 16-4 record.

At the beginning of the season Varsity Coach Stutz cited speed as an asset. But with little height and only three returning lettermen nothing unusual was expected.

The varsity Hornets came blasting out of the nest for the strongest start in Howe's history. In front of a sell-out home crowd they had the pleasure of defeating Tech for the first time in eight years. The first half of the season ended with a perfect record.

In the city tourney the varsity defeated Shortridge, Manual, and Washington to face Tech for the championship. In spite of the fierce desire to win, the game ended in a disheartening defeat.

The second half of the season the finesse and team play of the Hornets were acknowledged as the polls ranked Howe in the top ten. Dennis Moore, James Fair, Leo Banks, and Rick McKinstry received recognition on all-city and all-tourney teams. However, the varsity had more than just good players. They had an experienced and talented coach. Coach Stutz's abilities were again recognized as he achieved his 200th win.

Going into the sectional the Hornets faced Decatur Central. Taking the victory, they went against defending regional champion Perry Meridian. The first three quarters the Falcons led by four points. The final quarter narrowed the gap to two. With only eight seconds on the clock Perry went to the foul line. Tensed, Howe players and fans watched as the Perry man hit the first shot, went back for the second and missed. James Fair snatched away the rebound and sped down the court for two points. The rally fell short as Perry won 58-57, ending an exciting season for players and fans alike.

1. Hornets James Fair and Keith Manning play aggressive defense.

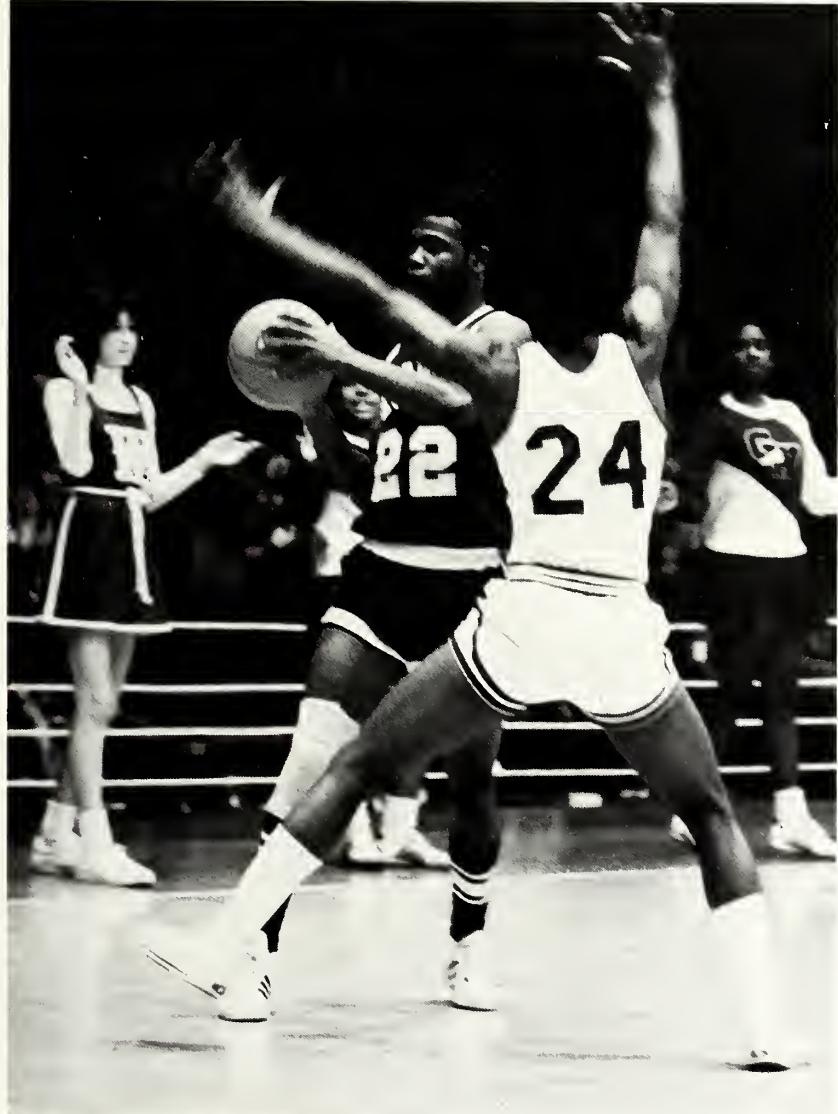

2. Sophomore Rick McKinstry puts the ball in the net as Leo Banks and Garland Hatter come in for the rebound.

5. Brian Edwards snatches the rebound for Howe.

6. Frustrated team captain Terry Edwards gives up the ball after a team error.

Second-Year Team Second in Sectional

The '77 varsity basketball team made a significant improvement over last year's record of 3-12 with an 8-8 season. Their greatest strength was shooting with Debbie Johns leading this department. Another reason for their improvement was the quickness of two freshmen, Rita Scott and Gus Helm. Head Coach Bob Mitchell stated that the season highlight was the game against Tech in the sectional final where the girls "played probably the best of two years of games. Even though they lost the girls knew they played to the best of their ability."

The small reserve team played a superb season. Their defense was excellent with the guards creating enough frustration in the opposing team to force turnovers. The shooting of Wendy Montgomery and the timing of starting forwards Sheila Robertson and Robin Nicewanger made their offense very exciting. All these combined brought their record to 11-2.

1. Ellen Glassmeyer passes off for an assist.
2. Debbie Johns evades a strong opposing team by passing to Meredith Driscoll.
3. Gus Helm shoots over the defense for two points.

7. Lynn Tanasovich drops the ball after Coach Rita Gaither calls time-out.

Matt State Finalist Again

Beginning with a special summer course for all athletes and participation in the Scarbrough Peace Games, Howe wrestlers started to defend their first city championship.

The wrestlers won some close matches with the help of a home crowd and they were impressive even while losing to state-ranked Carmel. The grapplers then proceeded to win their next three of four meets before the city.

Coach Jim Arvin cited a positive attitude and their excellent condition before the city tourney. The final results were a city runners-up trophy. Matt Langenbacher (119 lbs.) and Dick Bruce (185) were city champs; Troy Roeschlein and Fred Hess both placed second while Tim Hill placed third. Langenbacher was voted the tournament's most outstanding wrestler.

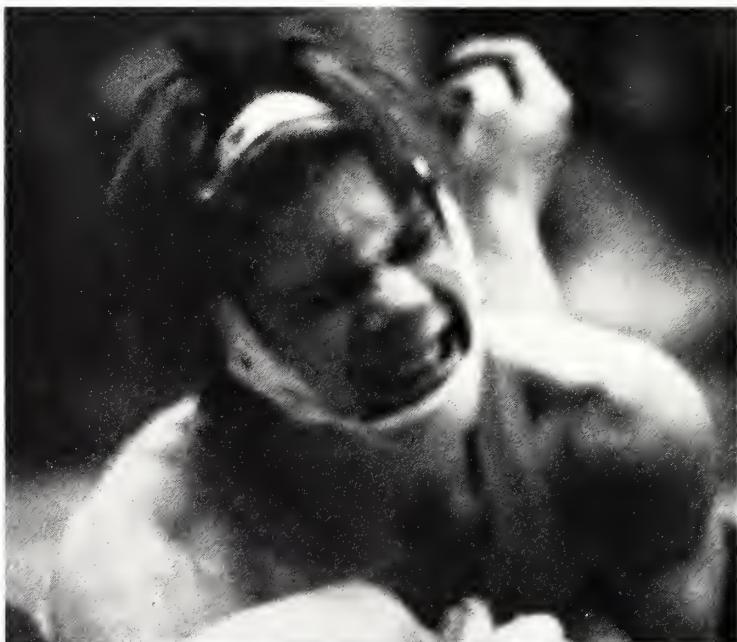

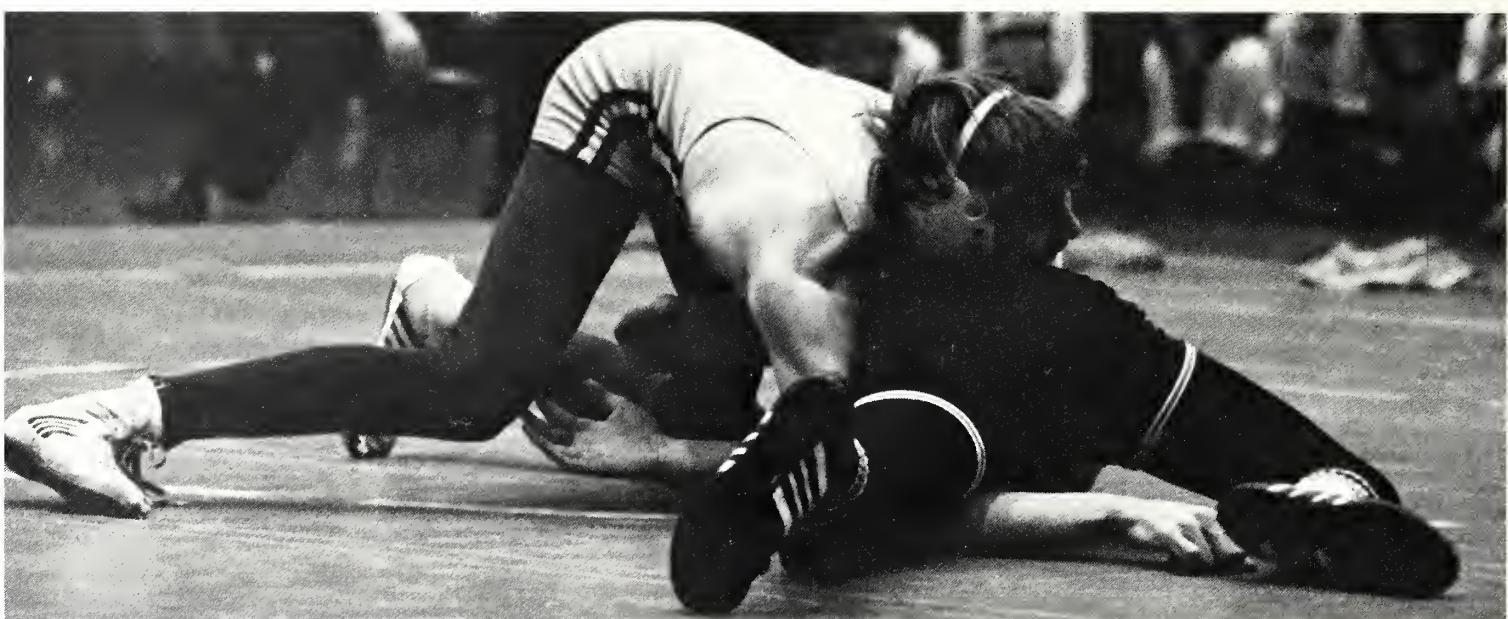

Under the guidance of coaches Paul Miller and Jerry McLeish, the Howe JV and freshman teams progressed toward producing varsity wrestlers. Inexperience plagued both teams, but Hornets came out on top in most instances.

The bitter cold and school closings didn't deter the grapplers from practicing. Some wrestlers maintained 24-hour-a-day restrictive diets in addition.

The action-filled sectional found state-ranked Beech Grove on top with Tech second and Howe a very close third. Bruce, Hess, Hill, and Langenbacher were sectional champs while Roeschlein and Randy Boyer captured seconds. All advanced to the regional.

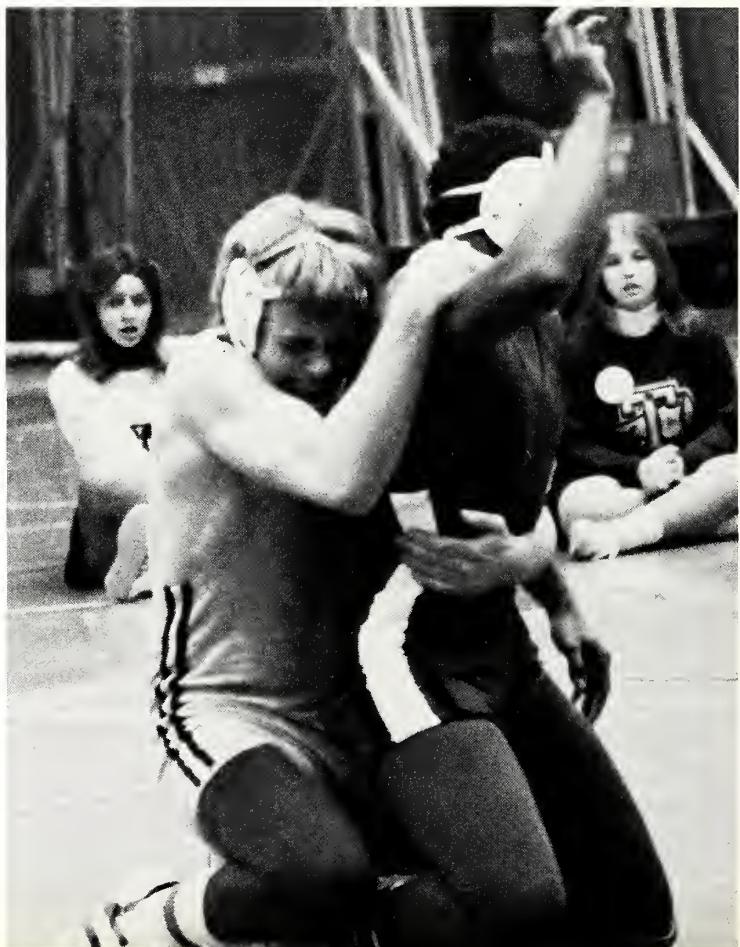

Langenbacher won the regional crown and Roeschlein captured a second place. Both went to the semi-state tourney. Matt Langenbacher won and advanced to the state finals for the second year in a row. Matt failed in his attempt at the crown but became the first Howe wrestler to be state finalist two years in a row.

1. Matt Langenbacher looks to the audience for encouragement.

2. Randy Boyer attempts a pin.

3. At the whistle, Dick Bruce grasps a Tech wrestler.

Faces and names that never met. This is what I find to be the conclusion of four years of school, after the ball games and sock-hops, plays and talent shows, proms and parties.

The names of those who made it big, the faces of those who tried and failed, know nothing of one another. The names of those determined to succeed and the faces of those who don't care, have a barrier between them.

The faces of those who are crying out, "I'm me, look!" need names. The names of those who are squawked about, need faces. Reach out to someone, we're all people, and come together. Put your name with your face and your face with your name.

(CINDY MASSEY)

CLASS OF '77

One's high school career lasts four hard years. With each year, a little more experience and knowledge is obtained. The fourth year is like the icing on the cake. It is filled with excitement and activities after several years of work. As a senior, one has come a long way from that first confusing, frightening encounter with Thomas Carr Howe High.

A senior is a leader and a symbol of authority and importance. Because he is familiar with the school, the teachers, and the general routine, the underclassmen look up to a senior for help and direction. Seniors are examples to follow. They have the experience that only time can bring.

One's senior year is filled to overflowing with activities, meetings, parties, and planning for the future. The ever-nearing time of graduation continuously needs planning and preparation.

When the time for leaving finally does arrive, the senior then realizes how important his high school days have been to him.

Perhaps being a senior touches one with a little sadness. The reality that he will leave forever a world he has come to know and love can be hard to take. The friendships he has made will last an eternity and he will cherish memories of high school and keep them locked in his heart forever.

Being a senior is ending one's high school career but only beginning his life in the world around him. Being a senior means realizing that he is a little older and a little wiser. Behind the tears that will flow on graduation day will be a stream of experiences and memories that only someone who once was a senior could understand.

Exchange Student Thanks Howe

At this time I want to thank the whole Howe family for their help and friendship during my time at this wonderful school. It was a great experience and a lot of fun for me to live in a different culture and to start in a different school system. I enjoyed my classes and met many active people in student council, TOWER, and the German Club.

What did I like most? The nice people I met everyday and the active school life. In my German school there are no activities at all. Therefore I really liked the school spirit at Howe including the dances, the school teams and games, club meetings, homecoming, and the senior play.

I would like to thank especially Mr. Tout, Mr. Nelson and Mrs. Aman for their help and understanding and every other teacher or student who is my friend and talked to me. I am glad to graduate with the class of '77.

I am proud to be a Hornet!

Seniors Present “Charlie Brown”

The senior class of 1977 presented “You’re a Good Man, Charlie Brown” as their traditional class play. The play, directed by Mrs. Hariette Baker, had a cast of only six very spirited actors: Chet Werner as Charlie Brown, Ellen Farrow as Lucy, Dan Lind as Snoopy, David McKain as Schroeder, Donna Kinney as Patty, and Mike Vinson as Linus. It was different from past plays because it had incidental music which the cast handled very well.

1. Snoopy's teeth are starting to tingle.
2. Charlie Brown's kite is finally flying.
3. Schroeder will not sell his piano for any reason.
4. Lucy stands up to Charlie Brown at the baseball game.

5. Linus concentrates on retrieving his blanket.
6. "You could be king, Charlie Brown, . . . if only you weren't so wishy-washy."
7. Patty repeats the Pledge of Allegiance.
8. Nobody ever kisses Snoopy.

Senior Advises Underclassmen

Hi.

I'm new. You too? Hey where in the world is "S-2?"
I wish I were a sophomore.

Hi there, remember me?

Biology stinks (and that's just the room!). Going to try out for football?

I sure wish I was a junior.

Hey, what's hap'ning, man? Who gave you the ring? Who gave you the hickey?

History is boooooring! English is a real drag!

Want to cut lunch? How 'bout the whole day?

I can't wait to be a senior.

Hello, old friend, you're really looking great.

What college are you going to? No kidding? When are you getting married?

I hope I get that A in gov't. I've got to try to get a scholarship. Why didn't I try harder last year, or the year before, or the year before that?

We've got to get together sometime soon, or sometime later. I'll miss you.

In fact, I love you, too.

Time sure has gone fast. Do you think you're ready to take on the world?

Well, it feels great to be graduating. I wish I didn't have so many regrets.

You know, I hope those freshmen don't waste their years like some of us did.

Goodbye, friends—say we'll keep in touch to make me feel better.

The Lockers Seem to Crowd

The lockers seem to crowd me as I rush down the gloomy halls and up the long stairs which never seem to end. Out of breath I shove my way through the crowd which appears to become bigger the farther I get through. On my way I drop my books by bumping into someone. In a rush I bend down to pick up my books, only to discover my math book is missing. Without any hesitation, I run back through the crowd, down the stairs and into the halls. I come to my locker, but I'm in so much of a hurry I forget my combination. After trying it for the fourth time, the locker comes dashing open, with paper and books all falling out. The late bell rings. Still rushing, I grab up everything and shove it in my locker. Just as I close the door, I realize I still don't have my math book, so I open the locker again, and once again the books and paper start pouring out. Luckily, my math book falls out first, so I grab it and place it with my other books. Then I grab the other mess and force it into my locker. Slamming the door, I pick up my books and run down the hall. A teacher in another classroom puts his head out the door and tells me to walk and not to run. I walk down the hall like he tells me, but soon I am stopped and asked for a pass, which I don't have. I'm sent to the dean for a pass. It takes ten minutes to see the dean and ten more minutes to explain my tardiness. Finally, I get the pass and rush back down the empty halls and up the stairs. When I get to my classroom the bell rings, and everyone dashes out. I tear up my pass and start toward my next class. The lockers seem to crowd me as I rush down the gloomy hall ...

Enjoy It While You Can

If you are going to be one of the precious few who can say they really DID something in high school, you must accept yourself physically, emotionally, and intellectually. You must know yourself and know you can be even better.

You can't dwell in dreams of what you want to be and spend the rest of your life convincing yourself that you are these things. You simply trust your own abilities, confident that you can adjust to meet new challenges.

This confidence can produce a completely new life for you. You become the type of person people can look up to because of your cool approach to new situations. There's something about the way you talk, the way you reach out to new acquaintances. It only takes two things: (1) Whatever the situation is, pretend it is the problem of the person you most admire. How would that person handle it? (2) Spend five minutes each morning in complete self-adulation. If even you don't think you can handle something, why should others? You'd be surprised what just a few moments of confidence-building can do.

Why, I've even commissioned close friends $3.00 an hour just to tell me how great I am. I fail to see humor in this idea, yet my friends derived no end of laughter from this. Are you laughing?

The underlying message from the graduating class is always this: Enjoy it while you can. Your years here at Howe can be the happiest of your life, but you've got to work at it. Make an earnest attempt at having fun. You won't get another chance.

Knowledge Through Experience

The greatest method of gaining knowledge is through experience. During the summer of 1976, I had the honor of attending Hoosier Girls State, a government learning program sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary. Nearly 800 representatives were housed in three dormitories on the campus of Indiana State University, in Terre Haute.

When I arrived at my dorm room I expected nothing but long hours, boring meetings, hard work, and more government than I cared to think about. At the end of the first day I began to realize how wrong I was. The meetings were very involved and quite interesting and it seemed that there wasn't enough time to take care of everything. Along with government, we all learned about the precious gift of a smile or a cheerful greeting. The work was difficult, but sharing the burden with a friend made it so much easier.

My concern and awareness have been greatly heightened over the American government system, and I hope to share my understanding of the importance of participation with all of my acquaintances. My experiences at Girls State taught me not only of government but also of loving others and living in harmony with them.

What Is It About Freshmen?

Crowding the halls, making it impossible to get to class, and going into complete hysteria if they can't find their classes are the annual new batch of freshmen.

You know the ones. They're new at Howe. They're the ones to whom you give the ticket to the swimming pool. You ask yourself what swimming pool? Silly, there is no pool but don't tell them that.

What is it about freshmen that makes them so much fun to pick on? Maybe because they are new and "wet behind the ears," or because they look so funny trying to get their lockers open while trying to hide the combination, or maybe even because it's funny to listen to them decide what jeans to wear to the Brown and Gold.

Remember your freshman year? I do. Looking back I remember the terrifying feeling I got walking into that new, big school. I always heard you could tell a freshman. I spent my whole first year wondering if I looked like a freshman.

"Don't carry all your books because freshmen have a way of dropping their books."

"Don't go near the tower stairs," they told me, "because those are for seniors and they'll throw things at you or they'll throw you into the creek."

All of this is a part of the everyday life of a freshman. Hang in there, guys, you'll make it. We all did!

Bothered by Social Standing

High School,
What a place.
You have your popularity to keep and cherish,
You have your pretty head to hold high.

I tell you it's good
To walk in the halls saying hello to half the people who pass.
It's very impressive.
You know it.
A kind of unseeable contest is made of it.
It's sad.

And am I just one of the many people you say HI to?
Just an unknown person added to Keep your social standing high?
Or am I a friend? (SAM ROBERSON)

Don't I Know You?

At the sound of a bell
 All stand
 And rush to the door
 And make their way (our way)
 Into the halls
 All touching
 But few really feeling
 Eyes meet
 But few really see
 But then sometimes
 Just sometimes
 We realize
 I see you each day
 On this same stairway
 Don't I know you?
 Is this all worthwhile?

Sports Are in the Air

Sports are in the air! One doesn't just watch athletic events, he feels the sport all around him! Each sport has its own mood that makes it unique and exciting.

Football is crisp weather, confetti, hot chocolate, blankets, and a cold nose. It has a feeling of the outdoors along with the action of the guys on the field fighting for valuable points for that hard-earned victory.

Basketball is fast-paced excitement with a feeling of closeness. One is close to the action and the opposition as well. The gymnasium is filled with the sound of cheers and competition. Fans are close to their neighbors and friends, and spirit is often contagious.

Wrestling finds one on the edge of his seat straining with the grapplers on the mats. It is one-to-one competition at its best, but everyone in the gym becomes involved in every battle of strength and strategy.

Gymnastics is grace and style. The peak of perfection is strived for in every move. The competition is both beautiful and breathtaking. It is truly "poetry in motion."

Swimming, track and field, golf, volleyball, baseball, tennis, and bowling at Howe all entail different moods and atmospheres that make the sport what it is. Why are sports so popular? They are popular because one doesn't just watch a physical match of skills. One is totally wrapped up in the thrill of competition. Sports are in the air!

Football, a Plaything?

The dictionary defines football as a plaything
 It don't look like play, the way they swing,
 It don't seem fair to pile up on one man,
 It sure must hurt the way they land,
 It's one time a guy can make a legitimate pass,
 Without getting slapped by an innocent lass.
 The downs go three, I think that's the way,
 Then they have to kick or lose their play.
 I don't know how many yards they have to run,
 But it sure don't look like a game of fun.
 It's beyond me how they can play in the rains and snows,
 Without being frostbit from their feet to their nose.
 Anyway, I'll watch football from now to New Year's Day,
 You think it's a fun game ..... MAN, NO WAY!

Only One Wins

The whistle blew.
 Six girls stepped up to the block,
 Each one nervous and anxious to go . . .
 Swimmers take your mark, Go!
 Their bodies outstretched as they lurch off the blocks with hard determination.
 Every girl strains with hard determination.
 Every girl strains with every pull, every kick, putting every ounce of energy and strength into each stroke.
 Then they are on the last length.
 Even the tiniest amount of energy left is poured into each stroke.
 Then it's over and only one girl wins.

Best Four Years?

Six in the morning is a pretty rough time to be pulling out of bed, so I wait until 7:15. But I don't lie in bed when I do wake up. I can't—7:15 is too late. I have to be sitting in my first-period class in one hour. Rush. I'm about halfway through washing my face and I can see the ugly day outside. It's been two full years, going on three, that I've gone through this monotony, five days a week and ten months a year. Do you know how much can happen in ten months?

These are the best years of my life? I hope there aren't any best years. I want each part of my life to have its share of bad to make the good seem better.

Muscles Are Ripping Apart

Okay, this is it.
 Are you gonna make the first move?
 Or am I?
 I suppose I will.
 I'm gonna take you down.
 There! My hands are around your back.
 Now, your arms are behind you.
 I've got to flip you over.
 You're bigger than I thought.
 My muscles are ripping apart.
 I can't clench my teeth harder.
 I've got to put your shoulders on the mat.
 You're awful strong—
 But I'll win.
 I've got to win.
 One more push.
 There! Your shoulders are down.
 You're down!
 I did win!

Through the Looking Glass

The 8:10 bell rings in the building.
Suddenly the chattering, overpopulated lobby begins to stir with excitement.
The whole student body seems to dart like salmon toward the rapids of the now flowing staircases.

In just a matter of minutes, the halls are nearly empty, only a few stragglers still color the now hollowed halls.
Then another bell rings, and there is silence in the empty and desolate pathways to the future . . .

In the years to come, we the students of Howe High School will look back upon all of the good times we have had. Even though the bad times may not seem so important when they happen, they are just as important as the fun and happiness that go along with the good times.

As we look ahead, we realize there are many roads we must travel. Some will be smooth and easy to travel. But then there are those which will be long, winding, and rough. No matter how bad times get and how rough life treats us, we can always look back on all the good times that we had at Howe.

When we leave Howe, we will realize that our four years at Howe have been four of the greatest years in our lives.

Mr. Philip Brown is a fantastic disciple of the testament of American history. His gory, thrill-packed adventures of time are well received by his fascinated students. Even the sleepers of other classes sit up and listen eagerly to his passages. Students that would normally cut a history class with any other teacher always seem to show up to his classes. Admiring teachers try to imitate his unmistakeable style, and yet none can even come close to him.

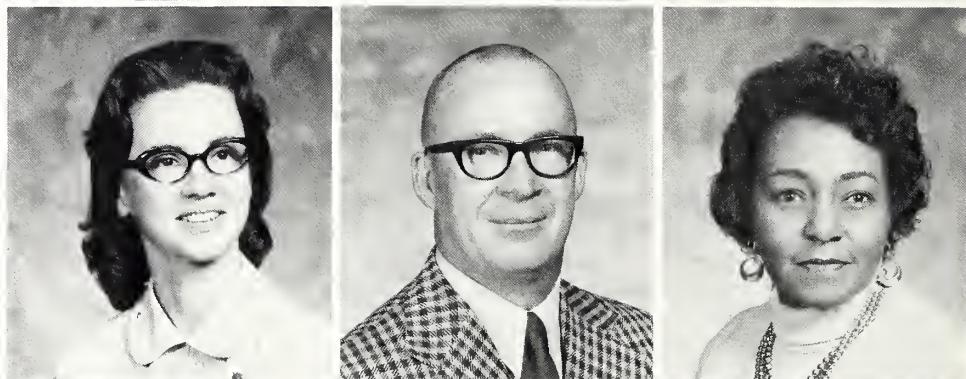

Mr. Brown brings himself down to the level of his students. He speaks out to each individual as a unique person. He doesn't try to speak above their language. Students accept him as one of their own kind. (LOIS LAUCK)

Seniors Helped With Mass Confusion

Many people are involved in putting together a yearbook. More than 30 people helped at different times to complete the 1977 book. Our seniors were chosen to represent the staff because it is impossible to picture everyone who helped. Each in his own way represents the other staffers in their concern and the time they gave to record another year.

Our thanks go to Mr. George Jackson and the business department for the use of their equipment at deadline time and to all of the faculty, staff, and student body for their cooperation throughout the year. We would especially like to thank the Student Council officers (Michael Wilson, Roland Lolla, Barbara Rouse, Andria Alexander, and Billye McGrory) who represent the student body of Howe on our cover.
